Preparing a Historical Resource Research Report

The purpose of this document is to provide clear direction and a standardized format for all historical research reports prepared in conjunction with a historic resource nomination or a report required as part of a ministerial construction permit application with the City of San Diego. A clear understanding of required information, documentation, and formatting will reduce the number of reports sent back for supplemental information and will allow both City staff and members of the Historical Resources Board (HRB) to more efficiently and effectively review resources being considered for historic designation. Therefore, beginning January 1, 2007, all historical resource research reports prepared for the City of San Diego must provide information, documentation and formatting as follows. For Historic Resource Technical Reports required as part of a discretionary development permit application, please refer to the Historical Resource Technical Report Guidelines and Requirements found in Appendix E, Part 1.2 of the City's Land Development Manual.

It should be noted that if staff determines during review of the report that required documentation, information, and analysis has not been provided or addressed as outlined in this document, the report may be sent back and the applicant will be required to resubmit the report.

Once the historical resource research report is deemed complete by staff the applicant will be required to provide additional double sided, stapled copies and an electronic copy.

Please note that property owners who wish to participate in the Mills Act program will be required to submit a separate application following the designation of the property.

"At-a-Glance" Report Summary

- Use the "At-a-Glance" Report Summary sheets included in this document as the submittal form for the Historical Resource Research Report.
- Historical Resource Research Reports which do not provide the two "At-a-Glance" Report Summary sheets will not be accepted. Additional report copies submitted at the request of staff will not need to include these Summary sheets.
- The applicant may provide their own individualized cover sheet if they choose to do so.

Department of Parks and Recreation (DPR) 523 forms

- All information and discussion of historicity and significance must be fully contained within Department of Parks and Recreation (DPR) 523 forms. These forms are available on-line by visiting the California State Office of Historic Preservation (OHP) website at http://ohp.parks.ca.gov/?page_id=1069. Historical reports that do not provide DPR forms, or provide them as attachments, will no longer be accepted. (Please refer to the attached DPR examples for clarification of HRB requirements and formatting.)
- Complete all DPR forms that are appropriate for the resource type. These include, but are not limited to:

- 523-A Primary Record (for all resource types)
 - 523-B Building Structure and Object Record (for all buildings, structures, and objects)
 - 523-C Archaeological Site Record Form (for archaeological sites only)
 - 523-D District Record Form (for proposed districts only)
 - 523-L Continuation Sheet (for information which cannot be contained within forms A-D)
- The information and analysis contained within the DPR forms must conform to OHP Guidelines cited above. The following section addresses common errors and omissions in the preparation of DPR forms, which must include:
 - Section P2e: This section must provide the Assessor's Parcel Number (APN) and the Legal Description.
 - Section P3a: A full architectural description of the building from the top down. Begin by identifying the style, date of construction and size of the building. Then describe the appearance of the building, including form, building materials, fenestration, architectural details, and condition of the building, as well as the setting, and the boundaries. The research report shall address the historical or architectural significance of interior elements that should be considered for designation. Public buildings being considered for designation should include thorough photo documentation of all interior areas visible to the public. (Refer to the Technical Assistance section for further information.)
 - Section P5a: The photograph used should clearly show the resource, preferably at an oblique angle, free of any obstructions such as cars or trees. If the lot is heavily vegetated, the photo should attempt to capture the resource as clearly as possible.
 - Section B6: A complete analysis and accounting of any and all alterations or modifications to the building, including re-roofing, re-stuccoing, replacement of siding, replacement of windows, additions, removals, etc. Interior spaces proposed for designation or publicly visible historic interiors should be similarly addressed. In addition to a field inspection, all available building records, including the residential building record, any and all building permit records, and all available Notices of Completion should be used in this analysis. Current owners should always be interviewed for information regarding modifications/maintenance of the property, and whenever possible, prior owners should be interviewed as well. Current and prior owners may also be a resource for historic photographs of the building which document changes, if any.
 - In addition, all modifications to original historic fabric must be identified and analyzed for its impact to the integrity of the structure.
 - If more space is required, use a DPR 523(L) form, also known as a Continuation Sheet. Use as many Continuation Sheets as necessary. Please note that the format of the Primary Record should not be altered to accommodate more text.
 - Section B10: An analysis of the property under all established Historical Resources Board Criteria under criterion headings. The applicant should make a clear and compelling argument as to why the property is or is not significant and eligible for designation under each criterion. Interior spaces proposed for designation or publicly visible historic interiors should be similarly addressed. (Please refer to the “Guidelines for the Application of Historical Resources Board Criteria for Designation” for assistance in applying the criteria). If more space is required, use a DPR 523(L) form, also known as a Continuation Sheet. Use as many Continuation Sheets as necessary. Please note that the format of the Building Structure and Object Record should not be altered to accommodate more text. Analysis under State and National Criteria is not required unless the applicant is pursuing designation under HRB Criterion E.

- The integrity of the resource should be included in the discussion of the property’s eligibility under HRB criteria. The resource, including interior elements under consideration, must retain integrity in order to be eligible for designation under any and all HRB criteria. The discussion of integrity should be tied to the property type and its contributing character defining features. Not all aspects of integrity are equally significant for all properties. For example, the integrity aspects of setting and location may not be as important for properties significant under HRB Criteria C and D, whereas setting and location can be highly important for properties significant under HRB Criteria A and B. Design materials and workmanship can be more important under HRB Criteria C and D than under HRB Criteria A and B. Feeling and association can be important under all HRB Criteria. Mathematical calculations for integrity analysis are not acceptable.
- If the applicant is proposing designation under HRB Criterion B for “significant person”, discuss how the property comparatively relates to other properties that the individual may have owned and/or occupied. Also include a discussion of the important person’s achievements and the dates of the achievements (period of significance) and demonstrate that they occupied the property during the identified period of significance.
- If the applicant is proposing designation under HRB Criterion D for association with a “Master”, discuss how the property is representative of their body of work. If the individual is not already recognized as a Master, provide enough evidence through an analytical narrative and supporting documentation in the attachments to show the breadth of the individual’s body of work; the high quality of their craftsmanship and/or whether peers considered them to be a Master; as well as how the property in question fits into the overall body of work and how it is representative of that body of work.
- Section B12: The References should include all references and works cited in the preparation of the Research Report. Acceptable formats include the Chicago Manual of Style, American Antiquity, or other standard humanities or scientific styles. If more space is required, use a DPR 523(L) form, also known as a Continuation Sheet. Use as many Continuation Sheets as necessary. Please note that the format of the Building Structure and Object Record should not be altered to accommodate more text.
- Sketch Map: The Sketch Map must show the building footprint(s) with a north arrow. This can be accomplished through an actual sketch map or an aerial photo with a north arrow. The Sketch Map must also show the nearest intersection. Please note that a Thomas Brothers map or other map which does not show the footprint of the building (in its current configuration) is not acceptable.

Technical Assistance

In order to assist the applicant in preparing a complete Historical Resource Research Report for consideration by the Historical Resources Board, HRB staff has compiled the following list of documents and resources designed to guide the applicant through the analysis of a resource and the preparation of a historical resource research report.

The following resources are available to provide assistance preparing a historical resource research report:

To view the City of San Diego's Historical Resources Guidelines in the Land Development Manual, please visit <http://www.sandiego.gov/development-services/industry/pdf/landdevmanual/lmhistorical.pdf>

For assistance in completing a DPR 523 form please review "Instructions for Recording Historical Resources", by going to <http://ohp.parks.ca.gov/pages/1054/files/manual95.pdf> . Assistance with completing a DPR form consistent with the City's requirements can also be found at the end of this document.

For assistance with evaluating the architecture and character defining features of a building, please review National Park Service Brief 17: "Architectural Character Identifying the Visual Aspects of Historic Buildings as an Aid to Preserving Their Character" by going to <http://www.cr.nps.gov/hps/tps/briefs/brief17.htm>

For assistance with evaluating a building's interior elements or spaces, please review National Park Service Bulletin 18: "Rehabilitating Interiors in Historic Buildings, Identifying and Preserving Character-Defining Elements" by going to <http://www.cr.nps.gov/hps/tps/briefs/brief18.htm>

For assistance with assessing the integrity of a resource, please review National Register Bulletin 15: "How to Evaluate the Integrity of a Property" by going to http://www.cr.nps.gov/nr/publications/bulletins/nrb15/nrb15_8.htm

For assistance applying the City of San Diego Historical Resources Board's designation criteria, please review the "Guidelines for the Application of HRB Criteria" by going to <http://www.sandiego.gov/planning/programs/historical/index.shtml> (once available)

*It should be noted that the popular reference book A Field Guide to American Houses by Virginia and Lee McAlester can be a useful starting point for the identification of architectural styles, but is not a definitive guide and has limited use and applicability within San Diego, which has many vernacular and hybrid variations of architecture.
